

Install guide for (2014-2019 Toyota Tundra Entune Premium GPS Navigation Radio)

Before you begin, make sure to checkout our install video. We spend a good amount of time getting these videos just right so that they will be a helpful guide.

Part lists

- Toyota Tundra Entune 2.0 GPS Navigation Radio

Tools required for installation, socket sizes & whatnot.

- Light Source
- Pry Tool
- Flathead Screwdriver
- 10mm Wrench/Socket

Skill Level: 2

Time Investment: 1-2 hours

Step 1: To start, we need to remove the climate controls. Grab your pry tool and pop out the climate controls. They are only held in with retainer clips. Let it hang or disconnect the climate controls and place off to the side.

Step 2: There are four screws at the bottom of the radio that are holding it in the dash. Remove all four screws.

Step 3: The factory radio should slide straight out.

Step 4: Angle the radio down so you can disconnect the rear connections.

Note: Take a picture of the connections for your reference.

Step 5: Once the radio is free from the dash. We need to swap over the radio bracket from the factory radio over to the upgrade radio. There are three screws on each side of the radio. If you have the XM tuner below the radio, swap that over to the radio upgrade as well.

Step 6: Back in the vehicle, if you had the base model radio, then we need to install a GPS antenna. If your radio had the APPS button, then you already have a GPS antenna installed from the factory and can skip this step. The GPS antenna has a magnetic back which can be used to mount the antenna under the dash on a metal bracket. As long as no metal is above the antenna, it will get a good signal.

Step 7: Time to plug in the radio upgrade. Starting with the GPS antenna you just installed or already had from the factory. Plug in each connector firmly till you hear the little click of them locking into place. Each is keyed so you can't plug anything in incorrectly.

Step 8: Slide the radio upgrade into the dash cavity.

Step 9: Secure the radio in the dash with the same four screws you removed earlier.

Step 10: With the radio installed, snap the climate controls back into the dash. Remember to plug in the climate console connectors if you disconnected them earlier.

Step 11: With that, the install is done. Start the vehicle and give the radio a moment to fully boot up.

Step 12: The radio should be powered up and pinpoint your location. Remember, if in a garage or heavy cover the GPS antenna may not get good signal. Get out on the road and GPS will track correctly.

Step 13: Enjoy your purchase and again thank you for choosing Infotainment.com for your upgrades.
