Time Investment: 1-2 hours

Step 1: Start with removing the bezel around the stock radio. With a firm grip, pull the bezel back toward you. Pry tools can help.

Note: Bezel is only held in with retainer clips.

Step 2: Set bezel off to the side once removed.

Step 3: You now have access to the four 10mm bolts holding the factory radio into place. Remove these bolts and place to the side. They will be reused.

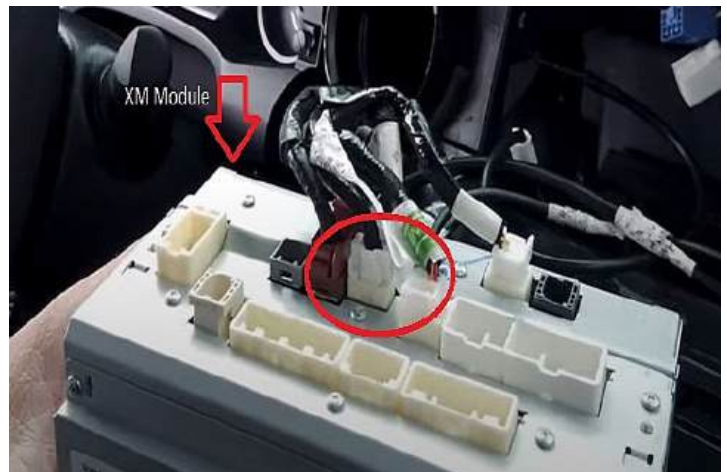

Step 4: Pull the radio forward and angle it down. Now remove the connections in the rear of the radio.

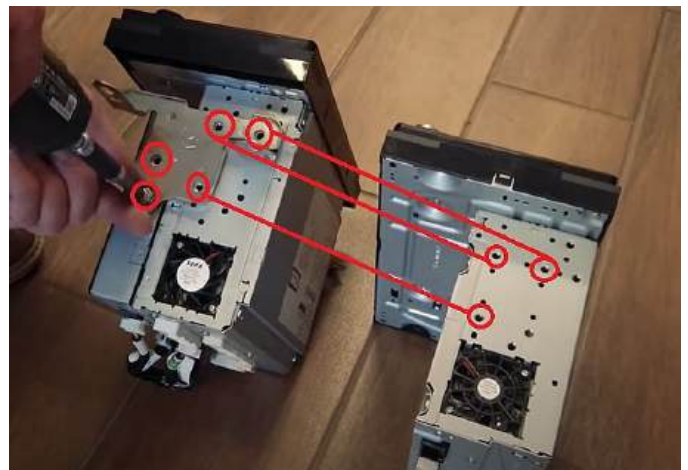

Note: Make sure to take a picture of how everything is connected from the factory for your records.

Step 5: There are three connections that go to the factory XM module. If you do not have this XM module then you will not gain XM service nor need to make the connections for the XM module.

Step 6: There are 5 screws holding the brackets on to the radio and XM module. You'll need to swap the brackets to the new radio.

Step 7: Take the included wiring harness conversion and connect them to the factory wiring.

Step 8: There are four connections to make to factory wiring. You'll have only three if you do not have a factory backup camera.

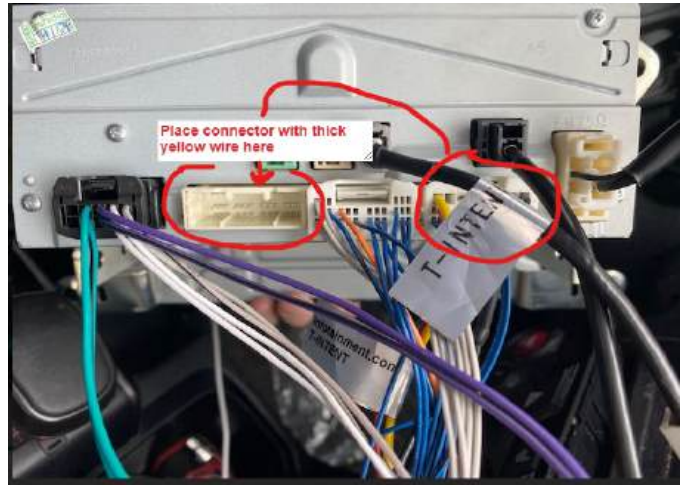

Step 9: Feed the wiring into the dash so only the connections needed for new radio are hanging out.

Step 10: Make all the five connections to the rear of the radio. Make sure to put the connector with the yellow wire into the left spot.

Note: If the connector with yellow wire is put in the right spot the radio will not turn on.

Step 11: Once you have everything plugged into the rear of the radio you can gently push the radio back into place.

Step 12: With radio in place, reused the four 10mm screws to mount the radio in place.

Step 13: Carefully put bezel back into place. Once lined up you can push the retainer clips back inward till you hear them click into place.

Step 14: Start the vehicle, and the radio should boot up.

Step 15: Enjoy your purchase and again thank you for choosing Infotainment.com for your upgrades.
