Before you begin, make sure to checkout our install video. We spend a good amount of time getting these videos just right so that they will be a helpful guide.

Part lists

- UAG 7" Radio Upgrade (C-UAG-JL)
- 8.4" Bezel (C-BEZ-7JL)

Tools required for installation, socket sizes & whatnot.

- Light Source
- Pry Tool
- Flathead Screwdriver
- 7mm Wrench/Socket

Skill Level: 2

Time Investment: 1-2 hours

Step 1: To Start, using your pry tool, pull the driver's side knee bolster down a bit in the top right corner. The knee bolster doesn't need to be fully removed, just enough space to get the HVAC controls popped out.

Step 2: Use your pry tool to pop out the HVAC controls from the right side. Either disconnect the connections then place it to the side or carefully let the controls hang while you finish installing the radio. The HVAC controls are only held in with retainer clips.

Step 3: There are two 7mm screws holding the factory bezel around the factory radio. Remove these two screws.

Step 4: You can now pull the factory bezel out and place it to the side. The rest of the bezel is only held in with retainer clips.

Step 5: You now have access to the four 7mm screws holding the factory radio in place. Remove all four screws.

Step 6: Lean the factory radio toward yourself, do not pull too hard. You'll see the factory fakra connections, USB connection, and the 52 black connector. Disconnect these connections. Place factory radio off to the side.

Step 7: For the UAG, you will need an antenna for XM signal. You can either use a new antenna that does both signals or a stand along XM antenna.

Note: XM antennas work best in a high position.

Step 8: Time to install the UAG. Connect the factory rear connections plus the new antenna for XM signal into the yellow/curry color fakra on the rear of the radio.

Step 9: Push radio into place, make sure not to pinch any wires. Secure radio with the four 7mm screws you removed earlier.

Step 10: Snap new bezel into place. This bezel has angled corners while your factory bezel has rounded corners. This is why you need a new bezel.

Step 11: Reinstall the two 7mm screws at the bottom of the new bezel.

Step 12: Snap the HVAC controls back into place. You'll hear the retainer clips engage.

Step 13: Push the top corner of the knee bolster back into place. You'll hear the retainer clips engage.

Step 14: Start the vehicle to see the new radio power on. If it doesn't double check your connections and your radio fuse, which is an inline fuse going from the battery to the firewall.

Note: When first installing an UConnect 4 or 5 radio in your Chrysler-based vehicle, you'll notice some features missing, such as your XM icon, incorrect splash screen, incorrect themes, heated & cooled seats and steering features, back up camera, no touch function, ghost touching on the screen, no AC, no sound unless you touch the screen and more. This will resolve itself, after turning off the vehicle, and letting it sleep an accumulative 48 hours. The backup camera may take the entire 48-hour period though. If there are any issues after that let us know.

Step 16: Thank you for your purchase.
